Many gardeners look for a “small” or “dwarf” flowering tree option, consider a large growing shrub for those landscape spots. This is a much better option than having to severely cut back a larger plant choice to fit into a smaller area. Many of the following shrub options can be found grafted in a tree form or trained into a single or multi-trunked specimen of small tree proportion. Consider these: Camellias (evergreen and colorful spring blooms), Contorted Filbert (fun twisty branches and foliage), Crape Myrtle (bright summer bloom and great fall color), Doublefile Viburnum (white lacecap flowers in spring, good structure and bright fall color), Elderberry (great foliage, late spring bloom and edible fruit), Enkianthus (fabulous blooms, bark and fall color), Flowering Currant (early spring color and hummingbird fav), Lilacs (super fragrant in spring), PG Hydrangeas (huge summer blooms), Pussy Willows (early spring color and character), Rose of Sharon (excellent summer bloom), Smoke Trees (great foliage and fun poufy summer flowers), Snowball Viburnum (white in late spring and showy), Wisteria (stunning and fragrant late spring), Witchhazel (fragrant winter bloom and great fall color) and many others.
